

When Nature Wept in Joy ...

I beheld a beautiful masterpiece of nature...
I stood atop a mountain draped in greenery;
I sat beneath a tree, admiring the vast sky...
As cuckoos sang, their melodies pouring like honey into my ears,
A gentle breeze came to softly caress my skin.

In the distance, a waterfall cascaded like a silver curtain,
Its music blending harmoniously with the rhythm of my own heart...
Colourful flowers smiled, adorned with droplets of dew,
While bees wandered, captivated by their fragrance;
Birds soaring through the sky sang songs of freedom...

That beauty, beyond the power of words to describe,
I drank in with my own eyes for the very first time...
In that fleeting instant,
I felt as though the entire world had stood still around me;
Even before my soul could depart from this body,

My heart rejoiced, as if I had glimpsed paradise itself...
That single moment... could time not have stood still forever?
Lost in nature's sublime beauty, I forgot myself completely;
Even the clouds fell in love with such splendour,
And shed tears of joy upon the earth as rain...

© Kishore JR

Undergraduate Student - BA.LLB (hons)

Tamil Nadu National Law University, Dindigul Main Road, Navalurkuttappattu, Srirangam Taluk, Tiruchirappalli - 620027, Tamil Nadu, India